2.0 Statistical highlights about the arts in Quebec⁵

- In 2010, all Quebecers 15 or older (99.8%, or 6.6 million people) participated in at least one of the 18 arts, culture or heritage activities. The participation data also show that 87.8% of residents listened to downloaded music or music on CDs, 85% watched a movie or a video, 75% read a book, 72.5% attended a performing arts event or cultural festival, and 36.4% visited an art gallery.
- Quebecers spent a total of $5.4 billion on cultural goods and services in 2008, or 2.7% of total consumer spending in the province, the lowest such percentage of all Canadian provinces. The $5.4 billion in consumer spending on culture is about double the $2.8 billion spent on culture in Quebec by all levels of government in 2007-08. This is the lowest consumer-to-government spending ratio of all the provinces. On a per capita basis, Quebecers' cultural spending ranks last among the provinces at $716 per resident.
- On a per capita basis, Montrealers' cultural spending in 2008 ($722) ranks 12th among 12 metropolitan areas in Canada. Total cultural spending was $2.6 billion in Montreal in 2008.
- In 2008, households in Quebec spent 28 cents for every $100 of income on books and 14 cents for every $100 of income on magazines.
- In 2008, 1.2 million households in Quebec reported spending a total of $275 million on live performing arts, accounting for 23% of all spending on live performing arts in Canada.
- In 2006, there were 30,200 artists in Quebec, representing 0.71% of the overall provincial labour force.
- The median earnings of artists in 2006 were $14,300, 44% less than the typical earnings of all provincial workers ($25,500).
- Between 1991 and 2006, the number of artists in Quebec increased more rapidly than the overall labour force (28% vs. 18%).
- In 2006, producers, directors, choreographers and related occupations was the largest of the nine arts occupation groups in Quebec (with 6,700 people reporting earnings), followed by musicians and singers (6,600), authors and writers (5,100), visual artists (3,400), and artisans and craftspersons (3,100).
- Of Canada's ten most artistic small and rural municipalities, West Bolton (in Quebec's Eastern Townships) is the only municipality in Canada with over 10% of its labour force in arts occupations. West Bolton's concentration of artists (10.47%) is over 13 times the Canadian average (0.77%) and more than four times the level in Vancouver (2.35%).

Examples of Canada Council funding in Quebec⁶

The Canada Council supports the endeavours of professional artists and arts organizations through its programs. The following selection illustrates some of the activities supported by the Canada Council in Quebec:

2011-12 season – The Montreal-based Ensemble Masques draws its inspiration from the masques of Elizabethan England, where mystical performances fused poetry, music, dance and drama. Acclaimed for its expressiveness, the eloquence of its musical interpretations and the dynamic involvement of its members, the Ensemble is dedicated to the interpretation of early music from the 17th and 18th centuries and has performed widely on the national and international stage. Touring engagements this season included concerts in Canada (Edmonton, Calgary), the USA (San Diego, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara) and Austria (Vienna). The Ensemble also signed a contract with London's Wigmore Hall for a performance in 2012-13. In Montreal, the Ensemble offered its fans a three-concert series. As part of the November Bach Festival, Abendsmusik, with Czech soprano Hana Blazikova, featured works by Biber, Buxtehude, Rosenmüller, Schmelzer and Bach. In the January concert, Chaconnes, playing scores by Lully, Marais and Purcell, the Ensemble collaborated with dance troupe Les jardins choréographiques and narrator Luc Gauthier. The final concert, Médée, featured music by Clérambault, Telemann and Lupien. For the Montreal concert series, the Ensemble Masques received a Canada Council grant of $15,000 through the Music – Concert Production and Rehearsal program.

⁶ Unless otherwise indicated, project descriptions and quotations are drawn from documents in the grant application.

May-June 2012 – A technoculture project created to animate a pedestrian thoroughfare, Machinations invites visitors to use their mobile devices or borrow iPads to play an interactive role in each of 3 playful works. Each installation explores a mechanism of the "human machine" in narratives inspired by the history and everyday life of the neighbourhood, Quebec City's Saint-Roch. The project was created by 3 video artists, Geneviève Allard, Émilie Baillargeon and Anne-Marie Bouchard, each producing one installation in collaboration with Aptgeek Technologies. It was presented by the artistrun centre Vidéo-Femmes, in the context of Manif d'art 6, a major urban contemporary art event, whose theme this year was "Machines – Shapes of Movement". Despite bad weather, some 200 people participated in the project. To create and present Machinations, its first technoculture project, Video-Femmes received a Canada Council grant of $40,500 through the Grants to Media Arts Organizations – Initiatives program. To offer workshops, host artist residencies and organize screenings and other activities over the next 3 years, Vidéo-Femmes also received a grant of $210,000 through the Council's Grants to Media Arts Organizations – Multi-Year Operating program and an equipment grant of $63,552 over the same 3-year period.

Spring 2012 – "Scientists, like all of us in society, have an obligation to give back, and I am happy to be able to donate the monetary value of the Prize in support of the HIV research and educational efforts in Canada and Africa that I'm associated with." So wrote Dr. Mark Wainberg, O.C., the 2012 recipient of the $100,000 Killam Prize in Health Sciences, a prize founded through a generous bequest from the Killam Trust and administered by the Canada Council for the Arts. He also expressed a hope that politicians at all levels of government would understand the need to maintain strong funding for medical research. As Professor of Medicine and of Microbiology and Immunology and head of McGill University's AIDS Centre, Dr. Wainberg is well known for his initial identification of 3TC as an effective anti-viral drug, an achievement that has been called "Canada's most important drug discovery since insulin." 3TC is now widely used around the world, and HIV treatment is influenced by the multiple contributions Dr. Wainberg has made to understanding HIV drug resistance.

August 2011 – At the Mushuau-nipi ancestral site on the migration path of the George River caribou in the Quebec tundra, 12 young people learned of their oral and written literary heritage this month through writing workshops, readings and creation activities. They were participants in the first Mushuau-nipi Youth Initiative, a retreat focusing on verbal expression, literature and identity led by writers Jean Sioui, Maya Cousineau Mollen and Anne-Marie André. The Initiatives were established by Baie-Comeau's Amis du Mushuau-nipi, a not-for-profit organization dedicated to training future leaders on the knowledge and realities of First Nations, the sharing of cultures and involvement on the territory. The retreat concluded with the drafting of a collective statement by Tania Larivière: "It is our decision to speak up, at last, and make our voice heard." The group also took part in a Youth Seminar on Water and Human Rights organized jointly with the International Water Secretariat, Amnesty International and the Regroupement des centres d'amitié autochtones du Québec. Their collective statement was presented in March 2012 at the 6th World Water Forum in Marseille, France. To run the retreat, Amis du Mushuau-nipi was awarded a $20,000 Canada Council grant through the Council's Artists and Community Collaboration program.

November 2011 – Aminata Diallo is "an 11-year-old child, who is taken from her village in West Africa and forced to walk for months to the sea in a coffle – a string of slaves." She is bound ultimately for the South Carolina slave market, where her new life begins. With the release by Montreal's Éditions de la Pleine Lune of Aminata, the French translation of The Book of Negroes, author Lawrence Hill and translator Carole Noël embarked this month on a promotional tour of Quebec book fairs and book stores, where they read from the French edition to enthusiastic audiences. Hill gave an interview for Radio Canada and Noël discussed the challenges in translating from the period dialogue of the original. For the tours, in which 8 other writers also participated, Éditions de la Pleine Lune received a $3,400 grant through the Canada Council's Book Publishing Support – Author Promotional Tours program. In the previous year, the publishing house had received a grant of $25,000 for translation costs. To write the book originally, author Hill received a grant of $20,000 in 2004.

March 2012 – Infiltration is encouraged at the 3e imperial, Centre d'essai en art actuel. The artist-run centre is dedicated to exploring approaches that situate contemporary art within the broader community and present works in unusual places. Through artist and writer residencies, it encourages research, production, dissemination, publishing and artist forums with an express consideration of infiltrating-art practices. In 2011-12, Victoria Stanton was one of 6 artists participating in a 16-month residency. Her initial idea was to draw a poetic parallel between the archetypal figure of the travelling salesman and that of the nomadic artist – between her father's life and her own. An off-site interdisciplinary exploration in Granby, QC culminated in the production of a short film, FatherWork – Mon Travail, combining black and white Super8 footage, video, performance and a colour-photo series. It was shown in March 2012. Locations in Granby – bar, hotel room, jewelry store, photography shop and audio equipment boutique – become containers for fragments that construct a touching autobiographical fiction. To assist with its activities over three years, the Centre received a Canada Council grant of $186,000 through the Assistance to Artist-Run Centres program.

Fall 2011 and spring 2012 – Montreal company Daniel Leveillé Nouvelle Danse added to its audience and market base in France, Poland and Korea over its 2011-12 season. A co-production agreement with Theater im Pumpenhaus, another with Fabrik Potsdam, performances at three Asian festivals and a number of European tours were among the outcomes of the company's October presence at the plenary meeting of the International Network for Contemporary Performing Arts (IETM) in Krakow and at the Performing Arts Market in Seoul (PAMS). At the Canadian Arts Presenting Association (CAPACOA) meeting in Toronto in November the company agreed to pursue the project of a Canadian tour for its 2013-14 season. In March 2012 the company was invited to perform La pudeur des icebergs (The Modesty of Icebergs), a work for six dancers, at the 14th edition of the Artdanthé festival in the Théâtre de Vanves on the outskirts of Paris. To offset travel costs, the company was awarded two Canada Council grants totaling $13,000 through the Council's Audience and Market Development – Travel Grants program.

21-23 October 2011 –In preparation for the 3-day Collision Arts Asia Festival in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, Pointe Claire video performance artists VJ Pillow (Thien Vu Dang) and VJ Mademoiselle (Yasuko Tadokoro) were invited to participate in a 3-week collaborative-creation residency co-directed by Montreal impresario Jerry Snell and Vivian Lea Si Xi. They worked with a group of young circus artists, creating video tableaux to illustrate the performers' inner desires and projecting them on a giant screen. The resulting work, Android Love, was presented each day of the festival. "Artistically," says Tadokoro, "I emerged stronger in many ways. At a human level I became steeped in a culture of which I knew nothing by associating with artists who were very proud of their origins and took time to share with us." The pair had particular praise for the good working atmosphere created by the unfailing serenity and generosity of the Malaysian performers and for the energy and passion they brought to their art. To supplement their travel costs, Vu Dang and Tadokoro each received a $2,000 Canada Council grant from the Inter-Arts Office.

Smooth" Soglo, taught workshops, presented a showcase and sat on a judges' panel this month at Flow One Three, one of the largest street dance events in the Netherlands. "Being one of the invited international dancers gave me the opportunity," he says, "to mingle and have discussions with b-boy EVO from England (undisputedly one of the European pioneers of b-boying), Paulo from 010 b-boyz (one of Holland's best known b-boys) and El Niño from Boston (the 2011 World b-boy champion), to name a few. These discussions were very good for me because they happened in a relaxed setting, and not at the event, where they were surrounded by a lot of people." About 40 students from across Europe attended Crazy Smooth's workshop and he got good feedback from his showcase. "Being recognized by my peers in Europe," he says, "has helped me stay relevant in the modern day street dance scene." To offset his travel costs, he was awarded a $900 Canada Council grant through the Travel Grants to Dance Professionals program.

April 2012 – A long process of interviews and story collecting underlies participatory theatre project, Safer Ground, based on the oral histories of Afghan Canadians and of Afghan veterans and their families. Led by Emilee Veluz, the artistic team of Teesri Duniya Theatre reached out to the Afghan community of Montreal with the help of immigrant associations to cast light on people's conditions, concerns and social place in Montreal. Cultural practices in the community were also highlighted in the collection process. Simultaneously, James Forsythe interviewed soldiers and their families at the military base in Brandon, Manitoba. The stories were sorted for similarities and contrasts to create a narrative that was then structured into a verbatim play. Consultation was key to play development. Forsythe acted as playwright, and each draft was distilled from the feedback through Teesri Duniya's Culturally Sensitive Dramaturgy Process. The premise of the resulting 2 ½ hour work was identified as "the struggle for human dignity in the face of war." It was presented this month in three parts at different locations in Montreal (the Afghan Women's Centre, Concordia University, Dawson College), with a discussion following each performance. A digital component was added to maintain a record of the work and the audience reaction. To develop and present the project, Teesri Duniya was awarded a $15,000 Canada Council grant through the Artists and Community Collaboration Program in Theatre.

4.0 Overall arts and culture funding in Quebec by all three levels of government⁷

- Arts and culture funding to Quebec from all three levels of government stood at $3.0 billion in 2009-10 (the latest year of overall data from Statistics Canada).

- Between 2005-06 and 2009-10, federal cultural spending in Quebec increased from $1.2 billion to $1.5 billion (an increase of 15%). During the same time period, Canada Council funding in Quebec increased from $37.8 million to $46.3 million.
- The largest part of provincial government funding is concentrated in five areas: libraries, heritage resources, performing arts, broadcasting and multidisciplinary arts (86% or $841.6 million). However, funding is also allocated by the provincial government to film and video ($46.2 million), arts education ($43.1 million) and visual arts and crafts ($25.1 million).
